MEASLES VACCINE CLINIC

A measles vaccine clinic is being planned by the Mattapoissett Board of Health in the very near future for babies 9 months old to school age. In order to know how much vaccine will be needed, the Board of Health requests all mothers with children eligible, to drop a card in the mail to either one of the district nurses, Mrs. Perry or Mrs. DeCoffe, stating the number of children who will be needing the vaccine. One dose is all that is needed for protection. No telephone calls please. This information must be received no later than September 4th.

POST OFFICE FLOWERS

The flower boxes at the Mattapoissett Post Office have been one colorful and attractive oasis in an otherwise drab summer. The Mattapoissett Woman's Club has been planting and caring for these flowers. Mrs. Robert Crab and Mrs. Victor Twiraga are in charge of this at the present time. It has come to our attention that former Postmaster Alice Corey initiated the Light up a cigar on Labor Day in honor of our country's working men. And when you and the family are making plans for the long Labor Day weekend, you may appreciate this special occasion more if you know something about its interesting origin, and how to make this Labor Day an especially safe and enjoyable one for the whole family.

Labor Day was founded in 1882 by Peter J. McGuire, a co-founder of the American Federation of Labor. At a meeting of the Central Labor Union (better known as the Knights of Labor), in New York on May 8, 1882, McGuire proposed a celebration in honor of "those who from rude nature have delved and carved all the great grandeur we behold."

When the first Labor Day was observed, Tuesday, September 5, 1882, 10,000 workmen marched down the streets of New York City. The first proposal for Labor Day observances suggested a parade followed by amusements and picnics for workers and their families. From 1883 to the present, Labor Day has been observed on the first Monday in September.

Today, Labor Day is a legal holiday in all of the 50 states and the Territories. While it's still celebrated with parades and picnics in many places, a large number of Americans also take advantage of the three day weekend Labor Day offers to take long drives to visit friends and family, or just to "see the sights."

To help keep you safe on the highway, experts suggest the following: make sure that both you and your car are in tip-top shape; watch not only the car in front of you, but the car in front of that one; to avoid fatigue, take frequent short rest breaks.

Make sure the glove compartment contains a few good cigars for Dad; he'll appreciate the enjoyment and relaxation a good cigar provides while he's driving.

Each year, Labor Day grows deeper in meaning with the realization that our vital labor force is responsible for the highest standard of living in the world.

HELEN & WALLACE HILL

NEW YORK (CFN)—The difference between a well-decorated room and one that lacks that special touch is often determined by the proper accessories, and one of the most important features in a room is the lighting. A lamp can give just the right look to a room, both from a decorative viewpoint, as well as the functional aspect. Here are a few decorating tricks to shed a little light on this subject:

How high should a lamp be that is to go on an end table at the side of a chair or next to the sofa? The average height is about 36-inches, but this is not always the rule. If the room has high ceilings, a taller lamp will give the room greater dimension. The same rule applies if the furniture is fairly large, or bulky in appearance, for here again, it is advisable to select a larger lamp to balance the chair or sofa.

How do you determine the correct height of a lamp for tables of various styles and dimensions? Generally, a good rule to follow is small lamps for small tables and large lamps for large tables. For example, the slim lines and delicate details of this Stiffel Lamp become a perfect accent for a long, narrow library table by Henredon.

It isn't necessary for the style of the lamp to conform to a particular period. If you are a little daring, you can achieve a most dramatic effect by using a lamp that is contrary to the design period of the room.

When and where can you use a floor lamp? Long neglected, the floor lamp has now come into its own, and because of its portability can be used in almost any area of a room. These lamps range from four to six feet in height and size depends upon how the lamp is used. If it is for reading, the bottom of the shade should be above eye level. If lamp is a decorative accent only, the important features are the color, shape and style in relationship to the other furnishings. One of the most attractive models available today is the floor-tray lamp, a handsome accessory that provides good lighting as well as table space next to a sofa or chair.

Colonial Town Government

THE TOWN'S MIND by W. R. Bliss

Of all the town officers the selectmen were chief. There were three of them chosen annually to direct prudential affairs, holding sessions at the tavern, where they usually sat the day out, having the town clerk at hand to record their orders, served with victuals and grog at the town's cost, and regarded by their host with a respect due to servants of the King.
They prepared business for the town meetings and nominated town officers for election. They looked up undesirable residents and were active (to quote the records of 1767) in "worn-ing Pepel oot of Town". In 1768 they sent Jeams Baker out of town at a cost of fifteen shillings; Nathan Bump was exported at a cost of six shillings; and Elisha Burgess received twenty shillings for carting out a whole family. Rams were in higher favor than these friendless sojourners. They had the freedom of the town until 1781, when it was ordered that they "shall be taken in" by the 1st of September.
But as they continued to stand at the street corners, the Town's Mind rose in anger,, and declared that "if a Ram goes at large the owner shall pay a dollar to him that takes up said ram."

The selectmen offered to the town meeting a variety of subjects for consideration. Some related to the extermination of foxes, crows, and other farm pests; to the protection of oyster fishing; to the catching and selling of alewives; to the acceptance of highways and the building of bridges; to repairs of the meeting-house; to the minister's salary and the ministry lands; to the herding of sheep and yoking of hogs on the commons; to such questions as "what amount of money is to be raised for defraying necessary expenses;" whether the town "will have a school this year;" or will choose a representative at the Great and General Court appointed to be convened for His Majesty's service in Boston; or will make new irons for the town stocks; or a

This last-named beneficiary was one of a large number of poor, ignorant, and superstitious peasants, prisoners from Acadia, kin of Evangeline and Gabriel Lajeunesse, who were billeted upon the towns of Massachusetts by orders of the royal Governor and Council, like the following, dated 1757: "To remove John Pelerine Wife and Choldren, supposed to be Five in Number a Family of French Neutrals to the Town of Wareham, and that the Select Men of the Town of Wareham be and hereby are directed to receive them and provide for them."

Alice Reed, whose coffin, winding-sheet, and grave thus cost the town sixteen shillings and four pence, had been one of the town's poor, annually put out by the selectmen to be kept at public expense. How to dispose of such people was a subject which periodically exercised the Town's Mind, and it was doubtless a consolation to know that some of the oaths and curses uttered in public had been turned by His Majesty's justice of the peace into shillings for their benefit, as the law directed. They began to call for support in 1746, when the town paid 12 pounds for keeping "Jane Bump so called with victuals and cloaths." The next year she was returned to the selectmen, who, not knowing what to do

A short time before she had enjoyed a merited credit with her heighbors, in regard to which the old account-book testifies as follows: "November ye 24 1751 ye widow Reliance bumpus Dr for 16 pounds of porck 1 bushall of corn and 1 gallon of malases and 1 pound of ches" -- "July 1752 Reconed with Relyanc bumpus and all accounts balanced." A TIP-TOP WAY TO START THE DAY

Minutes are precious in the morning, so next time you hear, "I don't have time for breakfast," re-examine that busy schedule. Each day should and can start off with an adequate meal and still not rob us of any of those treasured morning minutes.

Nutrition and medical authorities tell us that the too-often-neglected breakfast is no less important than lunch or dinner and may be the most important of all three ... and a good breakfast will help you feel tip-top all day.

A BREAKFAST SWITCH — A SANDWICH!

New and different ways of serving favorite breakfast foods add variety to this important morning meal. One-dish sandwiches double the appeal of breakfast favorites and are ideal for those who are pressed for time in the morning. For delicate taste and substantial fare try Scrambled Egg and Bacon Sandwiches.

Melt butter in skillet. Add salt to eggs and pour into skillet. Cook slowly, stirring the eggs from the bottom as they become firm and browned slightly. When eggs are fairly firm (but not dry) throughout, spoon them on slices of buttered toast. Garnish with two slices of crisp bacon crossed diagonally and top with second piece of buttered toast. Makes 4 servings.

Thus the poor widows Bump and Bump-us, descendants of Edward Bompasse, who came to Plymouth in the little ship "Fortune" from London in 1621, secured a place in recorded history. Many poor widows achieved the same distinction, and became their companions at the public crib. A warrant for a town meeting in 1757 stated a wish "To know the Towns Mind whether they will do anything for the Support of Sarah Chubbuck it being the Desire of her Brother Benjamin" -- a request which suggests that family pride in this respect was not a virtue universally appreciated. In the same year others joined the poor widows' band, among whom was Jane George, who became famous inasmuch as she participated in its joys and sorrows for fifty years.

were farmed out varied annually, but in 1770 their value was uniform at 3 pounds each per annum, taken as they ran. Their keeping was so profitable, in services rendered by them, as to induce the town to vote repeatedly "Not to build a poor-house," and a convenient plan for disposing of them was adopted: it was to sell them at auction. At a town meeting in 1776 it was voted, "to vandue the Widow Lovell." She was accordingly set up by the selectmen, and, as the records state, "was struck of to Josiah Stevens for to keep one year for the Sum of nine pounds Six shillings & if She did not live the year in he to have in that proportion." But she lived "the year in", and continued to appear at the annual auction. In 1782 the town voted to buy her a shirt, and then sold her again. After transfers to various homes, her death is disclosed in this record of September, 1784: "Voted for a winding sheet and a shift of the Widow Lovell eight shillings." And that was the end of her. To be concluded
